

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER SOTTER

Harmless to flush kidneys and neutralize irritating acids—Spend for system.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folk call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jax Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jax Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folk who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jax Salts is a splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effective, little water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

How Leonard Wood Did It.

There is nothing new in profiteering. When Leonard Wood was in charge of Santiago after the Spanish-American war, he found the butcher charging the starving people 75 cents a pound for beef. He summoned the butchers to his office.

"How much do you pay for the meat?" he asked.

"It is very expensive," they replied. "But how much do you pay for it?" he asked.

"We have to pay a great deal for it," they said again.

"But how much?" And this time the answer was made emphatically that it could not be ignored.

"Fifteen cents," they confessed. "Hereafter you sell it for 25 cents," Wood ordered.

The butchers left and the price of meat came down to the figure which he fixed.

SUES FOR $10,000 FOR WIFE'S DEATH

Trial of the $10,000 damage suit for the death of Mrs. Ellen M. O'Connor of Groton in an automobile accident there on the afternoon of July 25, 1919, was begun in the superior court here last Wednesday afternoon before Judge Donald T. Warner and a jury. The case was taken up after the jury in the Tuckie vs. Pratt estate case and returned its verdict for the plaintiff.

Henry Zavaritsky, proprietor of a lunch room in Groton, is the defendant in the case on the complaint that his car struck Mr. O'Connor, hurled her some distance and ran over her, inflicting injuries from which she died the same day. The suit is brought by Daniel F. O'Connor, her husband, who is administrator of her estate.

Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe, who are counsel for the plaintiff, opened the case by calling to the stand George E. Pitcher, the Norwich civil engineer, who explained a plan of the street in Groton at the point of the accident.

Daniel O'Connor, husband of the deceased woman and administrator of her estate, testified that he was years old at the time of her death and they had two children, aged 2 and 4. At the time of the accident, O'Connor was driving his wife were walking shoulder to shoulder on "Thames street, towards Eastern Point and about opposite Gospel hill, which was the main highway. His wife was hit by an automobile and thrown 60 feet. The automobile ran over her after she landed in the highway and the machine kept on until it was stopped by a witness who saw his wife hit.

The witness who saw his wife hit, Mrs. O'Connor, the driver of the machine would have a good view of the point where the witness and his wife were walking.

Mr. O'Connor testified that he was walking on the edge of the cement road on the left hand side of the cement road and he was on the dirt road at his left. The Zavaritsky automobile came from behind them and hit her but did not hit him. His wife's body landed in the road about 60 feet from the point where she was hit. The Zavaritsky was entirely off the cement when it hit Mrs. O'Connor and for 10 feet thereafter, the witness said. Alfred H. Radd of New London testified that he saw the crowd at the scene of the accident and about two minutes later found Zavaritsky at the Groton garage where Zavaritsky was having a tire fixed. Radd placed Zavaritsky under arrest and locked him up though Zavaritsky protested he could not be locked up because he was insured. The fender of the Zavaritsky car was bent. Mr. Radd measured the distance from the point where the blood spots were on the cement road and found it to be 65 feet 6 inches.

On cross examination by Attorney Brown, who had also cross examined Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Radd said he was engaged with other officers on the day of the accident in enforcing the automobile law. The witness said that he looked Zavaritsky up about twenty minutes after the accident and did it without asking Zavaritsky for his version of the accident. A brother officer gave the witness the information upon which he acted in making the arrest.

William Falk, a draftsman employed by the Electric Boat Co. in Groton, testified he was on his way from work and was about 200 feet from Brown's shop when he saw two cars coming towards the Electric Boat Co. harbor. He heard a crash and saw the woman's body land in the highway. The car that hit her crashed into another car and the woman, then turned to the left and went on. The witness thought the Zavaritsky car was traveling about 35 miles an hour and the other two cars about 20 miles an hour.

The jury in the case is the following: Charles McGilroy, John J. Connolly, George E. Pitcher, John C. Cray, Preston, Wm. R. Burdick, Jas. Armstrong, Griswold, Sans W. Throop, Clark H. Standish, Edward W. Radd, George E. Pitcher, George Sprague, George G. Bromley, Libson, George O. Avery, Salem.

Court adjourned at 10 o'clock to continue the trial of the case at 10 o'clock this (Thursday) morning.

BRANDEE IN LIST OF BACHELOR SENATORS

A Washington special to the Hartford Times has the following of local interest:

Bachelors seven in the United States senate, of whom Senator Brandegee of Connecticut is said to be the best dressed figure, are approaching another leap year, and as none of them is known to have a wife, there are bets being placed on which of the seven will be the first to listen to his own wedding bells. They are called "The Seven Wise Men." and some other colorful titles. But it is some time before the senator from Utah makes a move to marry. He is called the Seven Wise Men. Three of them are from Harvard and there's Brandegee—Yale '85.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, is held by the fair sex to be particularly culpable, being addicted to brilliant plumage. Feminine admirers of his might well be attracted by the Beau Brummel attire of Senator Brandegee. He is famous for his silk cravat and burnt orange tie, and is a devotee of the pink shirt. Still "No Wedding Bells for Me" seems to be his favorite omen. He is 55 years old.

ALLEYEN GIVES POLICY OF GREAT BRITAIN IN EGYPT

Cairo, Saturday, Nov. 16.—(By the A. P.)—Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, has issued the following statement:

"The policy of Great Britain in Egypt is to preserve the autonomy of the country under British protection and develop a system of self-government under an Egyptian ruler. The object of Great Britain is to defend Egypt against all external dangers and the interference of any foreign power, and at the same time establish a constitutional system, in which—under British guidance so far as may be necessary—the sultan and his ministers and the elected representatives of the people may in their several spheres increasingly cooperate in the management of Egyptian affairs."
